

AT THE EXPOSITION.

FACTS AND INCIDENTS OF THE DAY NOTED.

Another Week Entered Upon.—The Buildings Now Overcoming the Exhibits.—The Various Industries Represented on the Grounds.—Among the Exhibitors.—The Attendance.

When the exposition opened less than two weeks ago so few of the exhibits had been arranged that a feeling of uneasiness and apprehension was felt by not a few of those who saw it, and those who were not familiar with the facts, feared that the exposition company had erected more buildings than were necessary. Director-General Kimball, however, assured those who spoke to him about the matter that all the space would be filled, and that more than a hundred applicants would have to be denied space for their exhibits, simply because it was impossible to supply the demand. The exposition outgrew the first expectations of all to such an extent that a recital of the rapid development of the show would astonish anyone. As an instance of this, yesterday a representative of THE CONSTITUTION heard Mr. S. M. Inman, a member of the executive committee, say that when the matter was first discussed his opinion was that the affair would be a small one, probably not exceeding in cost fifteen thousand dollars, the exhibit consisting only of cotton fabrics and the exposition not going beyond the limits of a cotton show in the strictest sense. For the past two weeks the buildings and grounds have presented a scene of life and activity in the arrangement of exhibits that must astonish every one who enters the gates. The attendance has been small and the exhibitors have worked faithfully to get in position for the rush which no one doubts will come. The first excursion will arrive from Cincinnati tomorrow, and then the season of activity will have opened, and its rapid increase will follow. Excursions will arrive every day almost after the season opens, and the success of the exposition, both in point of exhibits and visitors, is about to be established. The State fair will close Saturday, and a good crowd will come up from Macon, Georgia has not come to the exposition yet, but will do so now. In conversation with a commercial man, who travels extensively over the state, a representative of THE CONSTITUTION was informed that the state would furnish a large crowd. The State fair always has an attendance of several thousand a day, generally ten thousand or thereabouts, and the exposition is a hundred times bigger than any fair Georgia ever saw. The people of the state know this, and when we are ready for them they will come. The first of a series of special weekly exhibits will be commenced on the 25th, and will attract many. Nothing can be said of the exposition that could be an exaggeration. It is grand, gloriously grand; worthy of the whole country, and no true Georgian can see it and not be filled with pride and enthusiasm.

The Day on the Grounds.

Yesterday at the exposition was a day of successful work and of much enjoyment. The attendance was good, both in the morning and the afternoon, and there were such cheering evidences of progress as made glad the hearts of the friends of this great show.

One of the things which will hurry up the work even faster than it has been going on is an order which Director-General Kimball issued yesterday to the effect that all exhibits now on the grounds and in the space now assigned to them must be in place by tomorrow night, as there is to be a grand excursion from the west here on Thursday, and the exposition will really open for its solid work on that day.

This order of the director-general will have an excellent effect, for there are scores of exhibits on the grounds which are not ready to be put in place by a little extra exertion on the part of those interested in them. The trouble is that one man waits for another to get ready before starting on his own work of preparation. Mr. Kimball thinks that this order will hasten matters considerably and that by Wednesday there will be a really marked improvement.

But even now there is enough to show to any crowd and challenge criticism. Even now it is the most remarkable thing that a town of Atlanta's size ever did, and every day adds some new touch which improves its strength and beauty.

Foreign Fabrics.

A fine collection of Chinese and Japanese fabrics have been forwarded through the state department at Washington, and are now arriving. The collection embraces every variety of hand-made cloth and clothing. The goods will be placed in position, and with some European hand and machine made goods will form an exceedingly attractive display.

The Excursions.

The first excursion of the season is booked for tomorrow. It comes from Cincinnati, and will be followed by scores of others from various parts of the country. Messrs. Nagle & Ryckman have arranged for a motor excursion from Philadelphia, which will arrive about the first of November. It will be known as the Textile Record excursion. The permanent excursion from New York has been fixed at $30 for the round trip.

The Press Pavilion.

On yesterday the press pavilion was decorated inside and the finishing touches given it. It is supplied with desks, chairs, writing material, and is a cozy place for the newspaper men. From the center hangs in graceful folds a United States flag surrounded by the flags of England, France, Italy and Mexico. The flag of fourteen other nations is suspended from the ceiling. Festoons of white and blue bunting ornament the room and are aided by a profusion of potted plants. Two flags are hung above the door, and directly under them is a monogram, "P. P." for press pavilion. The room presents an exceedingly cheerful appearance, and the press will doubtless fully appreciate the efforts to please.

The Special Weekly Exhibits.

A FINE LINE OF ATTRACTIONS FOR THE COMING WEEKS. The first of the series of special weekly exhibits will open next Tuesday and will continue Saturday following. There are to be six of these exhibits, the last closing on the third of December. The first is a display of fruits, flowers and ornamental plants, and will be very attractive. It will embrace grapes, stone fruits and pomegranates, berries, nuts, tropical fruits, preserves, jellies, dried fruits, canned fruits, wines, vinegars and ornamental plants and flowers. On Wednesday a special display of cut flowers and designs will be made. The display will be in the judges' hall and will be made in connection with the agricultural display, which is in charge of Mr. Henderson, state commissioner of agriculture and chief of the department of agriculture of the cotton exposition. The horticultural display is in charge of Dr. A. L. Kennedy, who has the management of the entire series of special weekly exhibits. Mr. Henderson is out of the city but Colonel J. S. Newman is getting the agricultural display up for him. The agricultural display at the State fair will be brought up and in a day or two a circular will be issued to farmers for specimens of agricultural products. The display promises to be one of unusual interest. The State fair has agreed to transport anything intended for the agricultural exhibit free of charge. The Southern express company through Mr. Clayton, the superintendent, in Atlanta, has agreed to bring samples weighing more than five pounds, free of charge. Those weighing more than five pounds will be brought at two-thirds of the usual rates. Mr. Newman is making efforts to get the various railroads of the state to follow the example of the Western and Atlantic railroad in this matter and transport free of charge products showing the resources of the state. All articles sent in for this exhibit should be directed to Mr. J. T. Henderson, chief of the department of agriculture, Atlanta, Georgia. Mr. Henderson is now at Tate Springs and will probably be at home tomorrow, when he will busy himself in arranging the agricultural exhibit. All the space necessary for the exhibit is assured and every farmer in the state is invited to send in something for it. The horticultural display will be fine. Those of our citizens who have flowers will be waited on by an employee of the department, who will solicit contributions of cutflowers and potted plants. The first of the series of weekly exhibits is one in which Georgia has an especial interest, and promises to be one that Georgians will not be ashamed of. On account of the scarcity of space the cotton exhibit will be confined to samples in boxes, which will be in agricultural hall.

Dr. Kennedy has been very energetic in getting up the series of weekly exhibits. The second, or display of cattle and mules, will open on Tuesday, November 1st, and close on the following Saturday. The stalls will be overhauled and put in trim order and a fine exhibit is expected. Some fine stock is expected, and a number of mules and cattle have been entered from Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee and other states.

The sheep and swine exhibit will open on November 8th, and last until Saturday night. Good premiums have been offered, and some fine sheep, goats and hogs are expected.

The dog show opens on the 15th of November, and continues for the usual time. Special attractions will be found in this display. It will embrace the various breeds of dogs under the following groups: Group 1, pointers, setters and spaniels. Group 2, deer hounds, grey hounds, fox hounds, beagles, and dachshunds. Group 3, non-sporting dogs.

The chicken show, which opens on the 23rd of November, will be especially fine. The coops will be attractive, and in competition for premiums the American standard of excellence will be the main guide of the judges. A premium of $100 is offered for the best collection of pure-bred poultry. Other smaller prizes are offered for the best of the different breeds of Asiatic, Dorkings (including game), Spanish, French, Polish, American, Hamburgs, Fantails, Langshans, Russells, Sultans, Silkies, Rumples, Frizzles, Malays, Black Jars, Creepers, and Capons, in chickens. In turkeys prizes are offered for the best bronze, buff, white, slate, black, and wild. Prizes are offered for the best of the different breeds of Guinea fowls, pea-fowls, pheasants, quails, geese, ducks, swans and pigeons. Also, for the best pair of Japanned Angons and common rabbits and for the best pair of ferrets.

The exhibits of dairy products opens on the 29th of November, and will consist of a fine display of butter and cheese. Special premiums of $100 each are offered for the best collection of foreign cheeses, in ten varieties of styles, and for the best and most artistically arranged collection of dairy products. These prizes are in addition to numerous other handsome prizes for dairy products.

This series of special exhibits must strike every one as covering a number of attractions which cannot fail to please. In fact, a man may come now, visit the exposition every day until its close, and it will present a new attraction on each visit, while the old ones will never tire.

The Sugar Cane.

Mr. Edward Harper, who lives on South river, four miles from Atlanta, exhibits specimens of sugar cane of two varieties, grown on his place. The one is the green and the other red. The one has thirteen stalks to one root, the other has 11 stalks. The cane is of good size and is twelve feet long. Some of his cane has matured and has twenty-two joints. He has one acre growing, and it will compare favorably with the sugar cane of any section of the state. He says he sees no reason why he should not have as good sugar or syrup as any one. These specimens can be seen at the agricultural department.

Georgia's Exhibit is destined to be one of the best of the entire lot and there are enterprising men who are saving the state from the stigma of sloth, which the action of the legislature would have left on her by a failure to have any exhibit.

Dr. Cary, superintendent of the State agricultural fair, and Captain J. S. Newman, of the agricultural department, are at work to secure the removal of the exhibits at Macon, and to insure a full display of the various resources of Georgia. Not only in minerals but in agricultural products there will be such a variety and beautiful display as will be of great value to the state, besides affording one of the most beautiful features of the entire exposition.

As soon as the Macon fair is over the shipment of goods to Atlanta will begin at a rapid rate and there are already arriving beautiful exhibits to go into the big show which Georgia will make.

An annex was commenced yesterday between the railroad building and the west wing of the main building which will be used for the South Carolina exhibit.

An annex between the main building and the agricultural machinery building is now going up and will be used for the beer exhibit which promises to be a very fine affair.

Director-General Kimball has received a favorable response from a number of governors invited to the cotton exposition, and governors' day will be a brilliant event in the history of the show.

Dr. Kennedy is one of the busiest men on the grounds.

The press pavilion was decorated inside yesterday, and is now fully ready for the quill drivers.

Atlanta merchants are showing up well.

terprise, the east, north and northwest seem to feel more interest in it, and make more, larger, and far more costly exhibits than the south. So, indeed, it may be called a northern exposition on southern soil, yet the southerners, so far from grudging them one inch of space, are anxious that they should have all they want. In point of exhibits the number and extent of them have, so far, exceeded the most sanguine anticipations of the managers, that although additions have been made to the main building, and several others erected, it is feared that many will fail to exhibit solely for want of space.

The Atlanta cotton exposition, according to all accounts, is a wonderful affair and a genuine surprise to the visitors who went to Atlanta with notions of the south and its enterprise based upon ancient geographical and campaign stories. Less attention is paid to mere curiosities than in exhibitions; but the great industries and products of the south are shown in such a manner as to satisfy the most skeptical that there is a prosperous and brilliant future for this section of the union. While there is some complaint, as there always is on such occasions, of extortionate prices charged for accommodations, it is the unanimous verdict, that the people of Atlanta have exhibited that kind and open-handed hospitality for which the south has always been noted.

The splendid weather of the past two days has brought out a local attendance to the exposition which would make the thing look like a first-class show were there none others here, but when supplemented by the presence of every passer through the gate and many country people, the exhibition finds its hands full in explaining his various mysteries. Among the arrivals to-day were forty car-loads of freight, which were unloaded on the grounds, while 250 more are waiting to unload. Director-General Kimball has, with marvelous tact and management, succeeded at last in settling the manifold disputes which threatened at first to seriously impair the progress of shaping up, and now many of the "hickies" and "cotton pickers" of the south's loudest glorifiers. Wonderful man, this Kimball, who has done the work of twenty men—and done it well indeed! Many, however, of his lieutenants deserve, and will receive, no small meed of praise for patient and effective work amid a world of difficulties, for no one but an eye witness can conceive the embarrassments they have had thrust upon them at the premature opening of this babel of confusion. It would, perhaps, have been better to have postponed the opening till two weeks later, but things are well enough here, and I think henceforward all will be smooth sailing.

It is easily proven that malarial fevers, constipation, torpidity of the liver and kidneys, general debility, nervousness, and neuralgic ailments yield readily to this great disease conqueror, Hop Bitters. The Popular Demand. So great has been the popular demand for the celebrated remedy, Kidney Wort, that it is having an immense sale from Maine to California. Sales have been found it inconvenient to prepare it from the dry compound; for such the proprietors now prepare it in liquid form. This can be procured at the druggists'. A Cruel Act.

It is a cruel act not to provide your wife and daughters with means to purchase the many useful and beautiful articles they need, which are to be found at Captain W. H. Brotherton's dry goods emporium, on the corner of Whitehall and Mitchell streets. The obliging and polite salesmen and clerks stand ready to wait on his many customers and show them through the establishment, while Captain Brotherton himself, has determined that the articles of spring and summer wear must go, in order to make room for the fall and winter supply. Therefore, it is not only an act of cruelty, but also an act of injustice to themselves, for those persons who desire to take advantage of the low prices at which he is offering his goods, not to avail themselves of an early opportunity to examine his stock and make their purchases. The whole, great, is not so great but what can be waited on, and we assure our readers that, while a big effort is being made to close out his present stock, buyers will not have put on them the fact of his liquidation and from outside circles that have spent their days of usefulness chiefly in lying on shelves till they have grown out of fashion and become worthless by reason of age.

For many years Mr. Dunn has been engaged in the tobacco business in Atlanta, and by economy and strict adherence to business gained much wealth. His life was insured for $8,000. His funeral, which occurred Sunday evening, was largely attended.

Hall of the Capital in the Louisiana State Lottery.

After the last drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery it was reported that Mr. John Connors, an engineer on the Louisville and Nashville road, had drawn half the capital prize, $15,000. "I understand, Mr. Connors," said a reporter, "that you held half of ticket No. 43,713, the capital prize in the Louisiana State Lottery?" "Yes, sir, I did. On Wednesday last, the 7th instant, I bought three half tickets of the agent here." "Did you have any trouble or delay in getting your money?" "Not a bit. On my return to Memphis I went to the bank of Commerce, which collected the money for me. I got my cent of it." Mr. Connors is a fine specimen of the American mechanic, broad-shouldered, well made and intelligent. There is no doubt but that he will put his winnings to good use. The next drawing is on November 8.—Memphis Avalanche, September 29.
